

Episodic Games Company Licenses WildTangent Web Driver Technology

WEB Corp. and WildTangent Sign Agreement to Bring a Series of "Webisodic" Games to the Internet.

Redmond, WA, April 20, 2000 - World Entertainment Broadcasting Corporation (WEB Corp.) and WildTangent announced today an agreement to provide a series of episodic computer games, available to consumers exclusively over the Internet. WEB Corp. is a newly-formed game publisher dedicated to providing "Webisodic™" content, and WildTangent's tools are uniquely suited to helping the company provide such content.

"This partnership makes a lot of sense for us for several reasons," said Jim Perkins, CEO and founder of WEB Corp., "We intend to improve the way that the consumers access high quality videogames - namely by episodic content delivery - and WildTangent has the technologies to make this a reality.

"The retail market for PC games will be dead in two years," said Alex St. John, CEO of WildTangent, "We believe that WEB Corp. is pioneering the new publishing model for the game industry, and we're happy to part of it."
